Course Title: Business Writing in English: The Foundations
Course Code: COM 32W
Instructor: Ken Romeo

Course Summary:
Writing well in English will benefit you personally and professionally. Whether corresponding with a colleague, a classmate, or your landlord, it is essential that your writing be clear and concise, and that it use the appropriate tone. This online writing course is geared toward advanced non-native speakers of English who have significant experience with the language. It will focus on helping students understand and practice the types of writing needed in professional situations, from more formal texts such as proposals and project reports, to more informal but still essential communications such as letters and emails. Emphasis will be placed on vocabulary choice, sentence structure, and paragraph organization. Coursework will include collaborative vocabulary exercises, sentence-level problem sets, and short- and long-passage editing, as well as longer-document homework assignments chosen by the student. Students will receive instructor and peer feedback throughout the course.

*Please see course page for full description and additional details.

Grade Options and Requirements:
- Letter Grade (A, B, C, D, No Pass)
  - All assignments will be graded on a completed / not completed basis
    - Weekly editing exercises 10%

Tentative Zoom Schedule:
Half-hour live Zoom sessions will be held each week. Students will be able to submit their preferences for times on Wednesdays or Thursdays in a survey during the first week of the course. These responses will be used to schedule the meeting times and dates so that all students have several chances during the quarter to participate in the live sessions. There will also be weekly opportunities for individual office hours meetings.
