Course Title: Writing the Memoir: The “Lighter Moments”
Course Code: WSP 237
Instructor: John W. Evans

Course Summary:

Learning Goals for the Course. My goal for your learning in this class is to do the following:

1. Review some literary writing strategies and concepts particular to writing personal essays about topics including everyday life, funny and romantic stories, family stories, and stories of travel.
2. Read and discuss examples from published authors who have written in this tradition.
3. Write 3-5 “starts” in this tradition: short essays or essay beginnings that you can take home and develop into stand-alone essays or book chapters for your own creative project.
4. Understand and practice some of the strategies those authors used.
5. Workshop in small groups a short essay of 2-3 pages (700 words maximum).
6. Understand the range of traditions that informs the memoir genre.

Please see course page for full description and additional details.
